ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Individual keys necessary for operations are grouped into key groups according to their functions. Key groups which do not fall within a display block allotted for all the keys are 5   further divided into sub-groups. Switching keys for switching to other sub-groups are added. An operator operates the switching keys to arrive at the intended key.